

ABSTRACT

A novel system and method for installation of heavy machinery includes an adjustable frame and bracketing system and mounting bolts translatable along fixed or movable brackets provides. The system provides the flexibility needed to facilitate proper alignment of the bolts with respect to mounting apertures of a heavy machine to thereby effect installation of the machine without any modification to the existing machine structure.